DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Herrmann in view of Kamei.

Herrmann teaches most of the elements of the disclosed invention. However, Herrmann fails to teach the front and leg armatures, formed of ductile material, passing through the body. Kamei teaches a poseable toy animal having front and rear legs armature passing through the body (22,24; fig. 1). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have the front and rear leg armatures of Herrmann pass through the body as taught by Kamei for the purpose of providing the toy figure with different poses.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kamei in view of Herrmann.

Kamei teaches in the figures most of the elements of the claimed invention. However, Kamei fails to teach padding material within the body. Herrmann teaches an animal having a body with appendages made of fabric provided with stuffing. Within the body and appendages are reinforcing front and rear leg wires. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate padding material as taught by Herrmann in the body of Kamei for the purpose of providing a stuffed animal.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2-4 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
